Safety Training Methods (STM)

An Advanced Safety Certificate Course

Safety Training Methods meets the criteria of ANSI Standard Z490.1-2001 for accepted practices in environmental training, health and safety. This one course touches all the issues you will likely face as a safety trainer and you'll learn techniques from the leaders in safety training.

What you will learn:

- Setting realistic expectations for employees
- Understanding how to connect with employees by addressing different learning styles
- Identifying training and non-training solutions for safety and health issues in your workplace
- Calculating direct and indirect training costs for more effective budgeting
- Measuring the success of your safety training program using proven methods
- Developing your presentation skills to build your self-confidence as a trainer
- Applying newly learned concepts to a variety of safety and health training scenarios
- Discussing training issues and sharing solutions with other safety professionals
- Designing a custom safety training program for your organization

This course gives you the tools to create or select training programs that truly engage employees and improve your organization's safety performance.

Students will receive a Participant Guide.
