WEATHER:

24-hour Projected Weather Statewide:

National Weather Service, 5:51 a.m., 7/29/12

A frontal boundary will stall out along the Mid Atlantic Coast today bringing the chance of a shower or thunderstorm to eastern Pennsylvania. Skies will range from mostly sunny across the western half of the state to partly sunny in the east. High temperatures today will range from 80 to 85 across most of the region.

High pressure will build east from the Great Lakes tonight supplying dry and tranquil weather to the Commonwealth. Low temperatures will range from the lower 50s over the northwest mountains to near 70 in Philadelphia.

A trough of low pressure will approach from the Ohio Valley on Monday bringing the chance of an afternoon thunderstorm, especially across the south central mountains. Under partly sunny skies highs Monday will be in the 80s.
