Keynote Presentation:

Elder Abuse: A Global Problem Requiring Local Solutions.

Deputy District Attorney Paul Greenwood will draw upon his seventeen year's experience in prosecuting felony elder abuse cases to explain why a coordinated community response is needed to combat the escalating tide of such crimes. He will offer suggestions on how to improve methods of recognizing, reporting, investigating and ultimately prosecuting offenders who exploit senior citizens.

DDA Greenwood will reflect on the past decade in Bucks County and nationally - to show that gradually more attention is being paid to this serious crime. But he will also advocate for greater effort in adopting a multi-disciplinary approach to tackling this invasive crime.

Greenwood will identify specific types of elder abuse, and will provide case examples and successful strategies for prosecuting both physical and financial elder abuse crimes.

The Purpose

In September 2000, William J. Neff, Sr., an 83 year old man with Alzheimer's, residing at a local personal care home, died as a result of five broken ribs and a punctured lung. Following a two-year criminal investigation, a health care provider was charged with Murder and Neglect of a Care-Dependent Person. In addition, the Administrator of the facility, the Director of Nursing, another resident assistant and a hospice nurse were criminally charged.

In 2003, all of the health care professionals were convicted of criminal offenses stemming from Mr. Neff's death. As a result of the criminal case, the Bucks County Crimes Against Older Adults Task Force sponsors this annual symposium to bring together law enforcement officers, health care and social service professionals to provide education, heighten awareness and facilitate communication.
