SECTION I. EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Educational Community

The Charter High School for Architecture + Design (CHAD) was organized by The American Institute of Architects (AIA) Philadelphia as the chapter's Legacy Project for hosting the AIA's 2000 National Conference. CHAD is located at 105 South 7th Street, Philadelphia, PA. CHAD served approximately 585-590 students in grades 9 through 12 residing in the City of Philadelphia and surrounding suburbs. The school remained organized into two self-contained and self-governing Houses (Educational Communities). The Houses are on separate floors of the school building and are managed by independent leadership groups including Deans and faculty.

As we evaluate this system and plan for the 2010-2011 school year, we have determined that the "universal" school functions should be fulfilled by a school-wide administrative staff. Also, we are re-imagining our 9th grade program as a preparatory high school, where students will receive academic and non academic tools necessary for our high school course of study. The school's curriculum was driven by a block-scheduling system, however, for the 10-11 school year our schedule will reflect a focus on single-periods for longer periods of time. Students' course of study focused on the State required core subjects and the specialization component of our school - Design. As a result of a faculty and student body that are uniquely talented and an organizational system that maximizes our resources, we continued to experience a high college placement rate of above 90%.

Mission

The Charter High School for Architecture + Design is a learning community committed to providing an innovative program of study that integrates the design process with the mastery of a strong liberal arts education. The school offers each student the opportunity for success and the preparation for life-long learning and responsible citizenship . CHAD is a thoughtful academic environment that engenders a love of learning, intellectual curiosity, and new ways of seeing, while preparing students for higher education.

Vision

Ownership:

CHAD emphasizes a student's active commitment to a personal educational process.

All students explore, discover, and use their voices. The responsive nature of our instructors and curriculum facilitates student development of identity and self-confidence. Curiosity guides students as they navigate through classroom curriculum, deepening their skills and sense of self. Invested in their learning, students produce work that reflects their sense of integrity and gives power to their voice. Students share and celebrate their successes with the school community. Encouraged to view their achievements with both pride and humility, CHAD students are asked to reflect on and use their achievements for further growth. In an atmosphere of high expectations and general support, students develop a rigorous work ethic that is commensurate with the strength of their voice. Our practices place CHAD students in a position to go forward as independent, responsible, and self-directed learners.

Academic:

CHAD teachers strive to create dynamic, student-centered classrooms in which democratic principles thrive. Our fluid curriculum is authentic: it reflects the real world, responds to our students' interests and lives, and prepares them to be active, life-long learners. Our teaching is shaped by varied and valid assessments. We ask students to transform problems into possibilities. Assessments are used to inform student self-reflection and teacher instruction. Through differentiated instruction, each child is both nurtured and challenged to continually reach for and expand his or her own potential. We enrich students' intellectual growth through process and skill-oriented learning. Students are asked to be accountable for the quality and integrity of their academic endeavors. We demand active participation, clear expression, sophisticated thinking, and high-level work from the members of our community.

Design:

CHAD emphasizes the use of the design process across the curriculum as a vehicle for creative and analytical thinking. CHAD's program provides students with the opportunity to understand the design process through creative and disciplined exploration. Important to this process are studio activities that involve structured investigation, self-reflection, critique, aesthetics, historical context, and multiculturalism. CHAD builds the confidence needed to explore problems, take risks, and turn challenges into numerous possibilities. Students learn to design in response to both the user and the environment.

Shared Values

All students are engaged in relationships that further personal and intellectual growth. The process of growing and learning is rooted in individual self-discovery, cooperation, and mutual respect. CHAD students share ideas and sharpen their skills under the guidance of a creative and dedicated faculty. Students engage one another and their teachers in a conversation that is the essence of learning.

One of the hallmarks of a CHAD education is the teachers' commitment to the personal growth of each student. At CHAD, each student has the personal support of an advisory teacher who monitors that student's progress and offers guidance in developing a rewarding academic identity. Knowing students as individuals, teachers encourage them to reflect, develop skills, take risks, and follow a passion. CHAD affirms the importance of the student-teacher-parent relationship. Students, teachers, and parents work together to create an exchange between school and home, making the student's journey of self-discovery more comprehensive.

Academic Standards

In as much as the Charter High School for Architecture + Design's (CHAD) curriculum is college preparatory, all students are scheduled for a full school day, which, in addition to instruction, may include mentoring, internship and community service.

CHAD shall award a high school diploma to every student who meets the requirements for graduation. Such requirements shall include the successful completion of courses of study for a four-year high school and which meet the standards set by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania Academic Standards, laws and regulations.

English - 7 credits
Social Studies - 4 credits
Foreign Language - 2 credits
Physical Education/Health-1.5 credits
Mathematics - 7 credits
Science - 4 credits
Design - 8 credits

In addition to the core credit requirements as stated above, students may also be required to complete and pass elective/workshop courses as rostered within a student's schedule.

In addition to satisfying credit requirements, students must also complete and properly document thirty (30) community service hours, per year, as approved by school officials. At the end of each year, a community service reflection project and paper will be required to earn full community service credit.

Strengths and Challenges

The strength of CHAD remains its school culture and environment and its ability to take care of its students and move them through graduation and into college/university. The school's emphasis on design education places its graduates in a very strong position with respect to acceptance into schools of Architecture, Design and Art, a fundamental component of CHAD's Mission. In many respects, CHAD is doing more and more to fulfill its mission and to serve its students. However, the emergent weakness of CHAD is its failure to fully meet the NCLB standards. For 2009-2010, though CHAD met 10 out of 13 targets, the school failed again to make AYP. In the past 2 years, we have established an In-House Tutoring Center with 3 full-time Tutors and have created an external Tutoring Program with 35+ volunteers. Our students attend tutoring sessions during the day, after school and on Saturdays. It is fair to say that our preparation for the 2009-2010 PSSA examinations was more extensive than it has ever been. More and more, however, it appears that our curriculum does not adequately reflect State and National Standards and, thus, we have begun a 3-year curriculum mapping project. We have excellent daily attendance and an unusually strong graduation rate and an exceptional college placement program.

SECTION II. STRATEGIC IMPROVEMENT PLANNING

Strategic Planning Process

The development of CHAD's Strategic Plan has taken place over a long period of time and has involved many members of the school community. The first step in the Strategic Plan was a school-wide retreat. Attending were representatives of the Board, Faculty, Administration, students and parents. The retreat addressed CHAD's Mission Statement and overall goals. As a result of this retreat, a Strategic Planning Committee, consisting of a number of Board Members and the School's Principal, was established.

A second school-wide retreat was held. At this retreat, which also enjoyed broad participation from the school community, a "mindmap" of trends, issues and developments was developed and retreat participants identified priorities. Small groups developed their vision of a preferred future for CHAD.

A third school-wide retreat was held. Participants focused on elements of the Strategic Plan and developed specific suggestions for selected elements of the Plan. Following the retreat, a "working draft" of the Strategic Plan was developed and circulated within the School community. The Mission Statement was adopted by the Board at a subsequent meeting.

A fourth all-school retreat was held. This retreat focused on the key issue of the School's curriculum and attempted to establish priorities among the various actions that were part of the Strategic Plan's "working draft."

The retreats served as valuable input for the Strategic Planning Committee, who held the responsibility for drafting the plan. In general, the committee followed these steps in preparing the Strategic Plan.

Step 1: Collect & Review examples of Strategic Plans, particularly from other schools.

Step 2: Identify the "Elements" to be included in the Plan.

Step 3: Assess Existing Conditions Re: each element.

Step 4: Draft a Mission Statement and Identify Goals for the next 3 years for each element of the plan.

Step 5: Identify Strategies and Actions to meet the Goals.

Step 6: Prepare a Draft of the Strategic Plan.

Step 7: Circulate, Review and Revise the Draft.

Step 8: Submit Revised Draft Plan for Adoption by the Board.

The Strategic Plan (2002) and the The Strategic Plan update (2006-07) are two documents of enormous importance to CHAD and CHAD's institutional memory. The two documents taken together, form an excellent foundation for a new strategic plan, one that is conceptualized and crafted differently. This new strategic plan was executed in the 07-08 and has continued through 2010. There are 6 key elements to the plan:

- I. Academic program and Curriculum
- II Leadership
- III. Size and scale
- IV. Faculty
- V. Facilities
- VI. Communications

Goals, Strategies and Activities

Goal: CURRICULUM

Description: As a 9 through 12 school has two main educational concerns that drive our curriculum and thus technology. These are 1) remediation of students, especially 9th graders where many come to us with 7th grade skills in various subject areas and 2) making sure that we meet and succeed in areas related to AYP and PSSA.

We believe we have a strong strategy in place because we made significant changes to our methodology in the 08-09 school year. We implemented and incorporated data from MAPs testing, StudyIsland, and Powerschool Portal to influence our daily instruction. Also, we created a full-service Tutoring Center led by two remedial instructors in Math and Literacy. Finally, students who were behind academically were identified mid-year and received intense and individualized attention and support.

Strategy: Expand Educational Technology Support

Description: Provide additional technology support for educational programs. Acquire new technology to provide additional capabilities to serve the diverse student population. Upgrade existing technology to insure a robust educational environment.

Activity: Expand Smartboard Technology

Description: Install interactive whiteboards (SMARTBoards) in all classrooms.

Goal: SCHOOL-WIDE TECHNICAL SUPPORT

Description: Continued use of a "tech team" to provide technical support. We have a Helpdesk Technician, a Technology Coordinator for the Design Department and a person dedicated to Powerschool for attendance, grades, and report cards.

Strategy: Keeping up to date with technology

Description: Current planning efforts will continue to expand its technology by networking with peers, attending professional conferences, such as NYSAIS Conference attended by the Technology Director, attending Apple Certifications programs, subscribing to professional publications such as "American School Board Journal" and "The Journal-Transforming Education Through Technology". By securing one e-Rate award we worked closely with several vendors. These vendors provide service to other public and private schools in the area and they can provide valuable guidance and advice. We have special needs in the sense that we need to perform as well as all other schools in academic areas and we need to teach Architecture and Design skills in addition to that. Through our unique curriculum our students learn how to develop a concept, design, execute, implement, evaluate and improve upon an idea. As a school for visual learners it is necessary to provide our teachers with the necessary hardware and software to accomplish their goals. In the effort to support our academic, design and special education teachers we feel we need the following hardware so our students can thrive in a Digital Age: 2 computer labs, additional video projectors for classrooms, poster-plotter printers for architectural drawings and artwork, video editing computers, cameras (video and photographic.) Classrooms need audio systems so web content can be heard, projection screens for classrooms to receive images from video projectors, additional Smartboards for classrooms, computer desks to replace the plastic folding tables, 1 4TB Hard Drive for storing and archiving our growing collection of student work.

SECTION III. QUALITY OF SCHOOL DESIGN

Rigorous Instructional Program

Teachers received a binder containing the approved and proposed high school standards distributed by the Pennsylvania Department of Education. During staff development sessions, administrators and department chairpersons worked with faculty to review and align standards to the coursework taught. Where no standards exist, such as in Design, we have developed our own, based on the expectations of the college and universities our students will attend. During the past school year, curriculum was revised in all instructional areas to ensure that this objective is met. Curriculum revision continued with special emphasis on Mathematics and continuing emphasis on English reading and writing.

As in the previous year, students with more ability were afforded an opportunity to receive challenging instruction in all curricular areas. We continued both formal and informal faculty after school tutoring and our new National Honor Society members provided additional tutoring support. All students have opportunities for success and each child who attends CHAD can move into more challenging instructional settings when competency has been demonstrated.

Class visitations and observations, weekly department meetings, monthly plenary sessions for all faculty ensured a seriousness of purpose to improve instructional techniques and the delivery of the curriculum. We are continuing to address individual learning styles as specifically as we can. We created student academic profiles by collecting data from standardized tests and classroom performance to help develop strategies to improve teaching and learning.

The Charter High School for Architecture Design acknowledges the need to address the performance of students who come to us with significantly deficient competencies in literacy and mathematics skills. Writing is an important part of our every day instruction and all teachers are inspired to include mathematics and reading for understanding exercises throughout the curriculum. We encouraged teachers to provide additional tutoring and have funded a program to ensure that this will happen. We are much more engaged to the importance of meeting NCLB standards and how critical it is to more fully prepare students for the tests. Thus, we are using the MAP program as a "pre-test." We have created and implemented other strategies including very specific vocabulary development. We are doing everything we can to raise student standards AND student performance on standard tests.

Many teaching strategies are used to actively engage students in the learning process. Manipulatives are used in all curricular areas and teachers are encouraged to lecture less frequently and provide instructional strategies that allow students to explore, investigate, think critically, design projects, teach others, compare and contrast, compose, invent as well as conclude and support, criticize with reason and justify positions.

CHAD continues to use the "Design Process" to inform its curriculum: (1) Identify; (2) Imagine; (3) Develop; (4) Execute; and (5) Evaluate.

Special Education

Children are referred through teachers, parents, special education staff, and regular staff to the child study team when the child is having problems learning in the general education setting. The child study team will meet to develop interventions that may include such things as extra time taking tests, tutoring sessions, repetition of basic skills, etc. for a period of at least two weeks. Parents are notified so that they may be involved in the process. During that time, students are monitored and progress is documented. The child study team then reconvenes, after this defined time, to discuss progress and decide whether or not a referral should be made for psycho educational evaluation.

Before the psycho educational evaluation is conducted, parents are contacted to obtain permission for the evaluation and to acquire pertinent background information. If an evaluation is warranted, the psychologist comes to the school to evaluate the student. Teachers' complete classroom based assessments and special education staff complete classroom observations. Parent interviews are conducted. All information is compiled into an Evaluation Report and the IEP team meets to discuss and review to determine if the student is eligible to receive special education services. If the student is found to have a disability, the IEP team compiles an Individualized Education Plan for the student at the IEP meeting.

Sometimes students need learning support classes, which focus on basic skills in both reading and math. We also have scheduled study hall classes taught by a special education teacher, which focus on test taking strategies, study skills and extra tutoring in all subjects. This instruction and support is made in the classroom to include extended time on tasks, directions, which are read aloud, practice and repetition, peer tutoring, etc. Most students come to the learning support classroom to take both standardized and school wide assessments when extended time or reading questions aloud is needed. We have a small intimate program with many opportunities for the special attention necessary to foster independence.

Student Assessment

The most immediate imperative for CHAD continues to be to improve Math and Reading proficiency and comprehension. In all four grades (9-12), the school moved to a more aggressive daily Math and English schedule, including 80-minute instructional blocks, a changed curriculum and new departmental leadership and the appointment of additional Master Teachers in Math and Reading. For the 2009-2010 school year, CHAD's tutoring center continued to provide remedial support for students whose basic academic math and reading skills were defined as deficient.

At CHAD, we understand and enthusiastically endorse the value of the NCLB assessments because the assessments present ambitious goals, goals which we can embrace without having to "teach to the tests." Because of what we are learning from PSSA results, we have begun to make radical adjustments in our curriculum and in the time we spend in the classroom with our students.

Because CHAD is a school of two Houses, we are able to monitor academic progress and status much more carefully; we have intervention and tutoring programs; we have a Wednesday "check-in Day" in all classes which allows us to identify the difficulties/struggles of individual students. Most of all, we have become acute observers and we are quick to intervene when we even "sense" difficulty for an individual student. Academic profiles are created through measurable data which drives our instruction and allows us to develop individualized student educational plans.

Teacher Evaluation

Recognizing that the teacher is the single most important factor in the educational process, teacher evaluation is a priority. Teachers are evaluated and reviewed on overall competency and pupil progress, as demonstrated by formal full-period assessments, written mini-observations and student portfolios (when appropriate). All teachers have received the following documents:

Basic Professional Responsibilities

Instructional Techniques in classroom management, teacher/pupil relationships and general instruction

Annual Summary

Growth Plan prompts

For 2008-09, CHAD faculty were reviewed by the Principal and Head of School. The goal was constructive review and specific forward progress, using "Growth Plans." The foundational elements were six: (1) Teaching CRAFT; (2) Teaching KNOWLEDGE of discipline; (3) Teaching TRAINING and EXPERIENCE; (4) Teaching CHARACTER and SERVICE; (5) Teaching BEHAVIOR (s); and (6) Teaching CERTIFICATION.

Peter Kountz - CEO/Head of School

Donna Costello - Principal

For 2009-10, the Senior administrators (above) met regularly with the Faculty Development personnel and mentors and discussed assigned readings on the six rubrics (above) and how to lead the Peer Review teams. In a number of ways, the whole process was quite successful in that we have seen progress, we have seen appropriate departures of faculty members who do not meet our standards, and we have put other faculty on a "need for improvement" notice. Additionally, by building and nurturing faculty teams for grade sets (Lower House- grades 9 & 10);

Upper House - grades 11 & 12), we have been able to focus much more on--and support--individual student success.

The Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees meets monthly with the Head of School to ensure all expectations are being met including fiscal responsibilities. During these meetings, all concerns and needs are aired and a strategy for resolution(s) is articulated.

The Board participated in a training program provided by Board Source. As a result, the Board improved its organizational structures in effective governance.

All board meetings are advertised in advance as required by the Sunshine Law in the Philadelphia Daily News.

Coordination of the Governance and Management of the School

The Board of Trustees has a good relationship with the School District of Philadelphia. Regular communication with the Charter School Office ensures that all expectations are met and concerns addressed. The chartering school district is invited to visit CHAD each year and these visits have cemented a positive and constructive relationship.

Board of Trustees Meeting Schedule

The Board of Trustees will meet at CHAD on the fourth Tuesday of every other month at 5:00 pm, at the school located 105 S. 7t St., Phila., PA. All items to be included on the monthly agenda or resolutions to be adopted must be submitted via email to Pcirone@chadmail.us one week in advance of the scheduled Board meeting (preceding Tuesday).

Community and Parent Engagement

The Board of Trustees plans and delivers strategic planning retreats each year with representative from all vested parties. Presently, three parents are full voting board members as per the Board by-laws. Monthly parent meetings are held with school personnel and the president of the parents' association attends board meetings and provides a report to the full board.

SECTION VI. FINANCIAL RESPONSIBILITIES

Major fund-raising activities

The school conducts fundraising through out the year culminating with a major event at graduation. Similar fundraising is planned for the current school year.

The Board of Trustees has adopted financial policies and procedures which include the topics - budgeting, accounting practices, procurement, contracts, internal control, cash management, grants management, time and attendance, contracted services, etc.

The school's budget, adopted in accordance with the timetable prescribed by the Commonwealth, serves as a blue print for financial decision making during the fiscal year. The budget provides for the educational, building and administrative needs of the school community and also includes a reserve for contingencies. All purchases and personnel decisions are reviewed for budgetary funds available prior to the issuance of a contract or purchase order.

The business office provides interim financial reporting for the board of trustees and CEO on a monthly basis. The Controller meets with the school administrative team regularly and attends all board and finance committee meetings. Through careful monitoring of expenditures and revenues the school is able to assure that all expenditure and revenue categories remain within budget.

Accounting System

The accounting system is Quickbooks and is loaded with the State Chart of Accounts. Transactions are posted by the Business Manager's Office staffed by experienced school business administrators. A trial balance, statement of revenue and expenditures and a statement of disbursements are prepared monthly. Reports are generated in compliance with State requirements

Student Enrollment

All students who express an interest in the design program and other curricular offerings are encouraged to submit applications to demonstrate their interest in our school. The school complies with state and charter school law. Each year we advertise a lottery date. Rolling admission continues until we reach full enrollment. Students who desire to attend, after full enrollment has been met, are placed in a "waiting pool" and are offered acceptance based "slots" they may become available.

We finished the 2009-10 school year with the following:

Grade 9 - 144 students
Grade 10 - 149 students
Grade 11 - 144 students
Grade 12 - 125 students

As students dropped/vountarily left, we attempted to fill "slots" with students in our waiting pool. For example, when a sophomore student left, we place a sophomore student in the slot.

No expulsions for the 2009-10 school year were reported.

Kindergarten is not offered.

STUDENT DISCIPLINE and BEHAVIOR

ATTEND SCHOOL AND ALL CLASSES REGULARLY

Regular attendance and punctuality are essential traits for a very successful student. It is the responsibility of each student to attend school daily and be punctual at all times. Absences and lateness become a part of student records. Post-secondary schools as well as prospective employers seek these records. In addition, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania has specific rules and regulations regarding compulsory attendance and unlawful absence.

State law establishes conditions under which students may be excused from attending school. In keeping with these statutes and recommendations of the State Department of Education, students may be temporarily excused from school attendance for the following reasons:

- a. Illness
- b. Quarantine
- c. Weather so inclement as to endanger the health of the child or make roads impassable
- d. Domestic service emergency permit
- e. Observance of a major religious holiday
- f. Other exceptional reasons with the approval of the administration

Absences

Students that are chronically absent will be assigned to our summer credit completion program according to the # of days absent:

14-17 Two weeks

18-24 Three weeks

25-30 Four weeks

Parents/guardians of students absent more than 30 days will be notified that their child has been removed and dismissed from enrollment.

Latenesses

Students will be required to attend a morning detention from 7:00-7:45 a.m. if they are late to advisory class (8:00 a.m.). The detention will be assigned for the next school day. If a student misses an assigned morning detention, s/he will be assigned a second detention to make-up.

Cut two morning detentions	1 day suspension

If the student is absent from class due to a falsified note, the procedures for class cutting will be followed. In addition the following action will be taken for falsifying a parental or teacher note:

First Offense	Parent Conference and detention
Second Offense	Saturday School and Attendance Contract
	Parent Conference
	Suspended indefinitely

Truancy
