Updates:

Hunters and trappers no longer required to display licenses; the transfer of a fall turkey tag to a Mentored Youth hunter; expanded bear hunting opportunities in urban/suburban WMUs; WMU 4C open to bobcat hunting and trapping; WMUs 2G and 4D open to fisher trapping; WMU 2B open to the hunting of male and female pheasants; and the removal of sporting arm limitations for fall turkey seasons in WMUs 1A, 1B and 2A are some of the highlights for hunters and furtakers this year. As always, be sure to thoroughly read this entire Digest before venturing forth on your adventures in Penn's Woods.

Those who didn't purchase a hunting or furtaker license for the last three years will notice the new way hunting and furtaker licenses are sold. To make the agency's license sales system more customer friendly, the Pennsylvania Automated Licensing System (PALS) was put into effect three years ago. The new licenses are printed on sturdy, weather-resistant yellow material. The harvest tags have perforated holes in them to make it easy to attach the tag to the animal. Additionally, all personal information will be printed on the tags, so all a hunter will need to do is enter the time, date and place of harvest. Like last year, deer and turkey harvest report cards are in this Digest, and they will not be distributed with the license. Hunters and furtakers can also report online at www.pgc.state.pa.us for deer, turkey, bobcat and fisher harvests, or over the telephone through the Interactive Voice Response (IVR) system by calling 1-855-PAHUNT1 (1-855-724-8681).

By state law, antlerless deer licenses will continue to be sold only by county treasurers, but under PALS, the system has been modified. Hunters will be able to submit an application to any county treasurer, and the application will list the hunters' first three choices, in order of preference, for specific WMU antlerless deer licenses. If an applicant's first choice of WMU has sold out, the county treasurer will move to the second preference—and third, if necessary (see details in the deer section elsewhere in this Digest).

Other benefits from PALS include: Application for the elk license drawing can be made when licenses are purchased; hunters can process DMAP antlerless deer coupons for permits rather than having to wait for permits to be mailed; a second spring gobbler license, and bobcat and fisher permits can be purchased (see specific sections for purchasing second gobbler license, bear license, and bobcat and fisher permits, as purchase cut off dates apply). For more information on PALS, see the license section in the back of this Digest.

For porcupines, the season runs September 1- March 31, 2013, except during the regular firearms deer seasons, with a new daily limit of 3 and a season limit of 10.

The snowshoe hare season December 26-January 1, 2013 is open in WMUs 2F, 2G & 3A only. All other WMUs are closed.
